

FROM REPORT TO RESULTS

Social Media for Community Conversations Resources

Twitter:

- Use the hashtag #Report2Results where you can!

With no state tests- and less traditional grading- how will our schools measure students' academic achievement? Click here to find other important questions you should ask your school leader <https://bit.ly/2YzjaSX>

Be a part of the conversation! @NationalPTA Community Conversations resources helps parents and local PTAs host important conversations around data and setting students up for success in the fall and beyond <https://bit.ly/2Yz1IOW>

As a result of COVID-19, traditional student and school data aren't available, so schools will need to provide families with other meaningful data to show how they are supporting all students. Access these resources to help lead this important discussion <https://bit.ly/2Yz1IOW>

There are lots of questions surrounding school openings, school data, and student learning. Don't know where to start? Check out these Ten Critical Questions to ask your school leader <https://bit.ly/2YzjaSX>

In our digital world, hosting a virtual townhall is a great way to connect parents with school leaders to answer important questions about school re-opening & student learning. These resources can help you create a meaningful dialogue with school leaders <https://bit.ly/2Yz1IOW>

Facebook:

Parents need a seat at the table to discuss the impact of COVID-19 on our schools and students. PTA has created resources to guide parents in these crucial conversations! Check out the Ten Critical Questions resource to ask your school leader about the upcoming school year. <https://bit.ly/2YzjaSX>

FROM REPORT TO RESULTS

As a result of COVID-19, some of the traditional student and school performance data isn't available, so schools will need to provide families with other meaningful data to show how they are supporting all students. More than ever, parents need to be involved in these important conversations with their school and district leaders. Click this link <https://bit.ly/2Yz1IOW> to find out how you can have meaningful conversations with leaders.

As a result of school closures this spring, it is difficult to get a clear picture of student progress and school performance in meeting the needs of all students. National PTA has resources to guide parents in conversations with school leaders <https://bit.ly/2Yz1IOW>. This toolkit includes helpful resources for setting up a meeting with your school leader, what important questions to ask, and follow-up steps to continue these important conversations.

Parents have lots of questions surrounding re-openings, student learning, and what next school year will look like, and it can be overwhelming. Don't know where to start? Check out these Ten Critical Questions to learn other important questions you should be discussing with school and district leaders. <https://bit.ly/2YzjaSX>

In our digital world, hosting a virtual townhall is a great way to connect parents with school and district leaders. This is a critical time for leaders to partner with parents and families to answer questions about the impact of school closures and what next school year might look like. These community conversation resources can help you create a meaningful dialogue with school and district leaders <https://bit.ly/2Yz1IOW>

