

Angela got involved in PTA 17 years ago when her daughter began kindergarten in a community new to their family. She attended her first PTA meeting at Penny Creek Elementary to learn more about what the school was like and help ease the nervousness of being a kindergarten parent for the first time. When she looks back at the first meeting, she realizes that it “was the beginning of my passion for volunteering and advocating for my community. We all have the goal of wanting to make a difference in our world and with PTA we can achieve that daily.”

From her first leadership role as staff appreciation chair to today, she has treasured the opportunities and experiences she has had volunteering through PTA. Angela has served on the executive boards of three local PTAs, held council and region service delivery team roles, served on the WSPTA leadership, scholarship, and growth and development committees, and most recently as WSPTA Area E Vice President, which included serving as Acting Region Director for Region 8 and Region 15.

As Vice President, Angela looks forward to continuing her service on the WSPTA Board of Directors, encouraging leaders, and promoting advocacy and engagement. “This past year has shown us how important our connections and relationships are, and across our state, PTAs are bringing communities together. I am honored to serve our board and PTA communities as we work to improve the lives of all children and families in Washington.”
